Second Lieutenant Samuel Reeves Keesler, Jr.
1896 – 1918

Samuel Reeves Keesler, Jr., was born in Greenwood, Mississippi, on 11 April 1896. He was an outstanding student leader and athlete in high school and at Davidson College in North Carolina.

Keesler entered the U.S. Army Air Service on 13 May 1917. He earned his commission as a second lieutenant on 15 August, and received training as an aerial observer at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, before sailing to France in March 1918. After additional training in aerial gunnery and artillery fire control, Lieutenant Keesler was assigned to the 24th Aero Squadron, in the Verdun sector of the Western Front, on 26 August 1918.

While performing a reconnaissance mission behind German lines in the late afternoon of 8 October 1918, Keesler and his pilot, 1st Lt Harold W. Riley, came under heavy gunfire from four enemy aircraft. Riley quickly lost control of the badly damaged airplane while Keesler continued to fend off the attackers even as they plummeted to the ground. Seriously wounded during the battle and ensuing crash landing, German ground troops eventually captured and held Keesler and Riley prisoner. Unable to receive immediate medical attention, Keesler died from his injuries the following day. He was posthumously awarded the WWI Victory Medal with Silver Star device for his gallantry.

History of Keesler Air Force Base

Early Development: 1941 - 1949

In early January 1941, Biloxi city officials assembled a formal offer to invite the U.S. Army Corps to build a base to support the WWII training buildup. The package included the Biloxi airport, the old Naval Reserve Park, and parts of Oak Park sufficient to support a technical training school with a population of 5,200 people.

On 6 March 1941, the War Department officially notified Mayor Louis Braun that Biloxi had been selected. The War Department activated Army Air Corps Station No. 8, Aviation Mechanics School, Biloxi, Mississippi, on 12 June 1941. City officials wanted the base named after a notable figure in the local area's history, but it was War Department policy to name installations after service members killed in action. In late June, Mayor Braun received word that the new school would be named in honor of Second Lieutenant Samuel Reeves Keesler, Jr., of Greenwood, Mississippi. Lieutenant Keesler had died of wounds sustained during World War I while serving in France as an aerial observer assigned to the 24th Aero Squadron, U.S. Army Air Service. On 25 August 1941, Army Air Corps Station No. 8 was officially designated as Keesler Army Airfield.

Base Construction

Congress initially appropriated $6 million for construction at Biloxi and an additional $2 million for equipment. By the time the War Department allocated the funds in April 1941, the projected cost had risen to $9.6 million. On 14 June 1941, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers awarded Newton, Glenn, and Knost Construction Company and J. A. Jones Construction Company contracts totaling $10 million to build Biloxi's technical training school. At the time, it was the most expensive government project to have been undertaken in the State of Mississippi.

First Soldiers Arrive

Captain Samuel A. Mundell arrived in Biloxi on 12 June 1941. He was joined two days later by a startup cadre from Scott Field, Illinois, consisting of a second lieutenant and 20 enlisted personnel; they established a temporary headquarters at the Biloxi Armory. Lieutenant Colonel William J. Hanlon arrived on 16 June to assume command from Captain Mundell. The same Arthur W. Brock who had first examined the site in January, now promoted to colonel, arrived on 17 July to become the base's first permanent commander.

On 8 September 1941, the 310th Technical School Squadron (the mess unit) became the first squadron to move to the new barracks. Before the end of the month, three basic training units, the 301st, 303d, and 304th Technical School Squadrons, had also moved into permanent quarters.

Basic Training

When the War Department activated Keesler Field in June 1941, the local community thought it was getting a technical training center with a student population, which might peak, at 20,000 people. Not only was Keesler to house a technical training center, but it would also host one of the Army's newest replacement, or basic training centers. Keesler's population almost doubled overnight.

The first shipment of recruits arrived at Keesler Field on 21 August 1941. During World War II, the Army's basic training program was little more than a reception process. At Keesler, basic training lasted four weeks, during which classifiers determined the type of follow-on schooling that each recruit would receive. Many stayed at Keesler to become airplane and engine mechanics, while others transferred to aerial gunnery or aviation cadet schools. Trains passed through Keesler daily, dropping off new trainees and picking up graduates.

By September 1944, the number of recruits had dropped, but the workload remained constant, as Keesler personnel began processing veteran ground troops and combat crews who had returned from duty overseas for additional training and follow-on assignments. Basic training wound down drastically after the end of World War II, and it was finally discontinued at Keesler on 30 June 1946.

Technical Training

Technical training school officers and staff began arriving at Keesler Field in mid July 1941, primarily from Chanute Field, Illinois. The new academic buildings were still under construction when the Airplane and Engine Mechanics School opened. Basic Branch students received instruction in five barracks buildings; Instructor Branch students were assigned to temporary classrooms set up in commandeered circus tents. In mid-1942 the Army Air Forces directed Keesler to focus upon the training of mechanics for B-24 Liberator heavy bombers. The school received its first B-24 in late September 1942. Six more arrived shortly thereafter, and specialized B-24 maintenance training began on 19 October. Over time, Keesler gradually replaced them with civilian instructors, including many women.

Women began training here in 1943, as did international students. Students from more than 50 countries have received aviation, personnel, and electronics training at Keesler.

Generally unknown to most was the role that the Tuskegee Airmen and other African-American troops played on Keesler. In fact, more than 7,000 African-American soldiers were stationed at Keesler Field by the autumn of 1943. These soldiers included pre-aviation cadets, radio operators, aviation technicians, bombardiers, and aviation mechanics. Many others, like First Sergeant Lucius Theus, a future major general, also served with distinction in Keesler's permanently assigned African-Americans units. Keesler also trained a small number of black aircraft mechanics from the Tuskegee Institute. These African-American service members took a giant step forward in their goal of winning wars on two fronts - the struggle against racism at home and the fight against foreign enemies abroad.

Specialized Flying Training

Keesler continued to focus upon specialized training in B-24 maintenance until mid-1944. Thereafter, the base was directed to expand its mechanics training curriculums to include other aircraft. Changing requirements forced the consolidation of all air-rescue training at Keesler in early 1945, however, and many of these programs had to be moved elsewhere for lack of facility space.

The rapid buildup of heavy bomber units overseas demanded additional aircrew, and Keesler was tasked to assist in the spring of 1944. A B-24 Copilot School began operation in July, and its curriculum was expanded to include B-32 copilot training in October. Procured in small numbers as a back-up aircraft design for the B-29 strategic bomber program, the B-32 Terminator was plagued with mechanical problems and production delays. Its contribution to the war effort was limited and, subsequently, B-32 aircrew training ceased in January 1945. The need for B-24 crews had also diminished, and Keesler stopped training B-24 copilots two months later.

B-24 maintenance training was taught at Keesler's Airplane and Engine Mechanics School until 1945.

In late July 1944, the Army Air Forces (AAF) consolidated all air-sea rescue training at Keesler. The situation worsened on 4 January 1945, when the AAF Training Command ordered Keesler to give priority to air-sea rescue training. The Emergency Rescue School disbanded in April 1946. Thereafter, air-sea rescue training passed to the Air Transport Command's newly established Air Rescue Service.

The Post World War II Era

In late May 1947, the AAF announced plans to move its Radar School from Boca Raton, Florida, to Keesler. The Radar School officially arrived on 14 November 1947, making Keesler responsible for operating the two largest military technical schools in the United States. Thereafter, shrinking budgets forced the base to reduce its operating costs: the Airplane and Engine Mechanics School and the Radar School consolidated on 1 April 1948.

Meanwhile, in September 1947, the United States Air Force became an independent branch of the armed services. As a result, Keesler Field was officially redesignated as an Air Force base on 13 January 1948.

In early 1949, Air Training Command decided that Keesler should focus its efforts on teaching radar, radio, and electronics maintenance and repair. To make room, the airplane and engine mechanics courses had to be moved elsewhere. Especially since the Air Force also planned to transfer the Radio Operations School to Keesler from Scott AFB, Illinois. In addition to training radio operators, Keesler was to begin teaching air traffic service technicians; aircraft approach controllers, ground radar mechanics, and radar repairman/ground-controlled approach specialists. The last mechanics training courses had moved to Sheppard AFB, Texas, by November, and it was at this point in the base's history that Keesler became known as the "Electronics Training Center of the Air Force."

The Korean War and the Fifties: 1950 - 1959

In August 1950, Keesler embarked on a major rebuilding program to upgrade its facilities across the board. The first phase of this project called for the construction of a new electronics laboratory, barracks, and a dining hall for a total cost of $14 million. In 1951, Congress appropriated an additional $44 million to complete Keesler's reconstruction. Plans included four two-story academic buildings (later named Allee, Dolan, Thomson, and Wolfe Halls), a 352-bed hospital, modern family housing units, and a three-story dormitory complex dubbed "the triangle" because of its distinctive layout.

The 1950s also meant organizational change for Keesler. Since August 1948, the 3380th Technical Training Wing had controlled all base activities. Under it were four subordinate units: the 3380th Technical Training Group, which operated the school; the 3380th Maintenance and Supply Group; the 3380th Air Base Group; and the 3380th Medical Group. In 1955, a fifth group was added: the 3380th Installations Group. That arrangement continued until 1 January 1959, when Air Training Command redesignated the wing as Headquarters, Keesler Technical Training Center (KTTC). At the same time, the training group was redesignated as the 3380th Technical School, USAF, and all its subordinate student squadrons were renamed school squadrons.

Technical Training

Keesler's modernization required more than expanded facilities. For example, Keesler began using television instruction methods as early as June 1953. In 1950, Keesler offered only 14 generalized courses, but by December 1959 that number had grown to 116, including vital USAF programs such as the aircraft warning and control system.

In early 1956, Keesler entered the missile age by opening a ground support-training program for the SM-65 Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile. In addition, school personnel were developing training methods for the newly adopted semi-automatic ground environment (SAGE) system, an integrated defense net intended to protect the United States from Soviet air attack. The base gained even more responsibility in 1958, when the Air Force announced that Scott AFB would relinquish its training mission. As a result, all control tower operator, radio maintenance, and general radio operator courses came to be under Keesler's already broad technical training roof.

Technology in the Sixties and Seventies: 1960 - 1979

By 1960 the school at Keesler had earned a solid reputation for high technology training, offering courses in radar, communications, and electronics. During the early 1960s, Keesler lost many of its airborne training courses, and the aircraft they required. The TC-54s assigned to electronic warfare officer training departed for Mather AFB, California, in April 1961. In December 1962, the Air Ground Operations School and its T-33s transferred to Eglin AFB, Florida; they had filled Biloxi's airspace with jet noise since 1957. The last C-47 used for airborne ground approach radar training left in 1966, when it was replaced by a ground-based simulator.

By the mid-1960s, the United States was beginning to deploy substantial forces to Southeast Asia. The Vietnam War buildup caused base-wide shortages of everything from uniforms to post office boxes, but it also returned pilot training to Keesler for the first time since 1953. On 15 January 1967, the 3389th Pilot Training Squadron was activated and equipped with T-28 Trojans. Its mission was to teach Military Assistance Program (MAP) students how to fly. The squadron hosted personnel from many countries, including Iran, Mexico, and Peru, but especially from South Vietnam. Of the 908 pilots who graduated before the squadron inactivated in 1973, 743 were from that beleaguered country. Advances in evolving technology rapidly led to changes in Keesler's training and infrastructure. Meanwhile, all Air Force basic training at Keesler ceased in 1966, when Air Training Command assigned that responsibility solely to Lackland AFB, Texas.

Advances in evolving technology rapidly led to changes in Keesler's training.

On 11 June 1968, Keesler reached a milestone when it graduated its one-millionth student. A month later, the school absorbed both personnel and administrative functions that increased Keesler's student population by almost 20 percent.

Keesler remained the largest training base within ATC throughout the 1970s, and it continued to stay on the cutting edge of electronics technology, instructing students in new systems such as the worldwide military command and control system and the 407L radar system. The school was the country's main supplier of electronics technicians, but a traditional division between academic and technical studies meant that Keesler's graduates could not receive college credit for their efforts.

On 31 May 1972, Air Training Command redesignated the 3380th Technical School as the USAF School of Applied Aerospace Sciences. Soon after on 13 December, the school received institutional accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. As a result, Airmen trained at Keesler received a Career Educational Certificate from the newly established Community College of the Air Force. This opportunity was further expanded in April 1977, when Keesler graduates became eligible to apply their technical training towards an Associate of Arts degree.

Keesler's student load dropped to an all-time low after the Vietnam War ended, and Air Force officials responded to changing social conditions by reexamining the school's teaching functions. As a result, Air Training Command inactivated the USAF School of Applied Aerospace Sciences on 1 April 1977 and replaced it with the 3300th Technical Training Wing, which activated the same day.

Tenant Support

As the Vietnam War began winding down, so too did the need to train Vietnamese pilots. The MAP foreign pilot training program ended in 1973, again leaving Keesler without a flying mission. That situation did not last long as several flying units were reassigned to Keesler during the 1970s. On 16 April 1973, the Department of Defense announced that Military Airlift Command (MAC) would transfer two squadrons to Keesler: the 1st Aerospace Cartographic and Geodetic Squadron from Forbes AFB, Kansas, and the 53d Weather Reconnaissance Squadron from Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico. The 1st Aerospace Cartographic and Geodetic Squadron used its RC-130s to conduct photomapping assignments worldwide, while the 53d went "hurricane hunting" throughout the Caribbean with its WC-130s.

These squadrons were tenant units at Keesler, meaning they relied on various base organizations for support but were not otherwise a part of Keesler's command structure. Both units were in place by 31 July 1973. In addition to the units belonging to MAC, Keesler also gained an Air Force Reserve tenant in April 1973 when the 920th Tactical Airlift Group activated. This unit flew C-130 Hercules turboprop transport aircraft.

The increased number of large aircraft underscored the need for airfield improvements. Starting in January 1974, engineers began extending the runway and converting two hangars into aircraft maintenance shops. Even before these projects could be completed, however, the Air Force proposed transferring yet another unit to Keesler—the 7th Airborne Command and Control Squadron, which had previously been assigned to Pacific Air Forces and stationed in Southeast Asia. Active U.S. involvement had ended in Vietnam, and the 7th was no longer needed in the Far East. Keesler was selected as the new home for the 7th's EC-130 airborne command and control aircraft; the squadron arrived in August 1975 as a base tenant unit reporting directly to Tactical Air Command (TAC).

The End of the Cold War and Beyond: 1980 - 1999

Two weapon systems training programs gained attention during the early 1980s. One was the airborne warning and control system (employed aboard the E-3A Sentry aircraft), and the other was the BGM-109 ground-launched cruise missile. Keesler's air traffic control program also garnered its share of publicity, especially after the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization walked off the job in August 1981. When President Ronald Reagan fired the strikers, Keesler-trained military air traffic controllers stepped in to keep the nation's airways flowing smoothly.

Beginning in 1984, school officials worked with Air Force Communications Command's 1872d School Squadron to develop prototype-training programs using interactive videodisc (IVD) technology, which soon supported a variety of Keesler interactive course offerings. Keesler's Wall Studio IVD production capability was one of only two in the entire Air Force, and supported many organizations Air Force wide.

Driven by deep defense budget cuts, the congressionally mandated base realignment and closure process culminated in a major downsizing effort, significantly impacting Keesler's training mission. With base closure forcing an end to technical training at Chanute AFB, Illinois, and Lowry AFB, Colorado, Keesler's growing importance as a technical university would become even more firmly fixed. The first additions arrived in 1990, as Keesler acquired Chanute's weather forecasting courses. Lowry's metrology and precision maintenance electronics laboratory training program followed in 1992-1993.

The Air Force released the "Year of Training" initiatives in 1992. It was a top to bottom reevaluation of the process by which USAF technicians acquired and honed their skills. This action led to a host of organizational changes. One initiative proposed a drawdown of USAF field training detachments (FTD). These detachments were the mechanism by which USAF maintainers still in the planning stages in 1995, the FTD draw down initiative would divide weapon systems training among the major using commands and the technical training centers, and Keesler stood to inherit many new course responsibilities once the draw down plan went into effect.

Another Year of Training initiative resulted in the return of flying training to Keesler for the first time since 1973. Tasked with providing operational airlift support training to pilots in C-12C/F Huron and C-21A Learjet aircraft, the 45th Airlift Squadron was assigned to the 81st Training Group. It began operations in July 1994.

Meanwhile, the massive restructuring of the Air Force in the early 1990s also meant several changes for Keesler's associate units. The first occurred when the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron (known throughout the Gulf region as the Hurricane Hunters) inactivated and transferred to the reserves on 30 June 1991. Its important mission merged with the storm-tracking mission of the 815th WRS, a component of the 403rd Wing, Keesler's resident Air Force Reserve unit that includes the 815th Airlift Squadron that also flies C-130s. Another base tenant change occurred when the 7th Airborne Command and Control Squadron and its EC-130 flying command post aircraft relocated to Davis-Monthan AFB, Arizona, in September 1994.

Those restructuring efforts similarly affected units assigned to Keesler Technical Training Center. In February 1992, Headquarters Air Force redesignated the base's host unit as the Keesler Training Center (KTC). The 3300th Technical Training Wing downsized to become a group, and its component technical training groups became squadrons. The 3305th Student Group also inactivated along with its subordinate squadrons. In mid-September all the 3380th numbered units assumed the 393rd designation, as the base further realigned itself to conform to the Air Force's objective wing structure. In addition, the technical training group also assumed the 393rd designation, and its nine technical training and training support squadrons were renumbered to better reflect the new, simplified organizational arrangement.

Yet another major change occurred on 1 July 1993, when Keesler Training Center inactivated, and its lineage and honors retired. On the same day, the 81st Tactical Fighter Wing, formerly located at Royal Air Force (RAF) Station Bentwaters, United Kingdom, was redesignated the 81st Training Wing and concurrently activated to serve as Keesler's host organization. At the same time, HQ USAF redesignated Air Training Command as Air Education and Training Command (AETC), and the command activated Second Air Force and stationed it at Keesler. Its mission was to oversee all technical training conducted within AETC.

The 21st Century

The end of the Cold War and subsequent military drawdown caused the armed services to refocus on a long dormant issue, namely participation in the Interservice Training Review Organization (ITRO)—a review of military programs to eliminate training duplication and reduce training costs through consolidation. The first results of ITRO made themselves felt at Keesler in 1995, when the ITRO Executive Board determined that all DoD Calibration training would be consolidated at Keesler. The first contingent of students arrived in 1996, as the Navy closed offices and moved equipment from San Diego, California, and Norfolk, Virginia, to Keesler. The Marine Corps followed in 1997, as it transferred equipment and students from the Marine Corps Logistics Base (MCLB) in Albany, Georgia, to Keesler. The course load and population increase expected from the FTD drawdown dissipated in 1996, as USAF leaders determined that centralization of training under the FTD would be unrealistic.

On 4 October 1996, Keesler officially implemented “Triangle Vision,” an ambitious five-year, $23-million building project designed to modernize the base’s 1950s era technical training dormitories and dining facilities. The first phase of the project called for the selective short-term repair of existing facilities, including renovation of restrooms and removal of hazardous material. The second phase replaced dormitories with seven new facilities, created a new training support squadron and built an additional dining hall.

Hurricane Katrina

Hurricane Katrina ranked as one of the costliest and deadliest hurricanes in U.S. history. It was the eleventh named storm, fifth hurricane and second Category 5 hurricane of the 2005 Atlantic hurricane season, and sixth strongest Atlantic hurricane ever recorded, to date.

Tropical Depression Twelve formed over the southeastern Bahamas at 4:00 p.m. Central Daylight Time (CDT) on August 23, 2005 partially from the remains of Tropical Depression Ten. The system was upgraded to Tropical Storm Katrina on the morning of August 24, and became a hurricane only two hours before it made landfall on August 25, between Hallandale Beach and Aventura, on the east coast of Florida.

Katrina had a well-defined eye on Doppler radar that remained intact throughout its passage over the state Florida. It had weakened to a tropical storm as it passed over land, but quickly regained strength and hurricane status approximately one hour after entering the Gulf of Mexico. Rapid intensification occurred during the first 24-hours after entering the Gulf, due in part to the storm’s movement over the warm sea surface temperatures of the Loop Current—a large flow of warm water that flows clockwise and dominates circulation within the eastern Gulf of Mexico. On August 25, the storm reached Category 3 intensity on the Saffir-Simpson Hurricane Scale, and became the third major hurricane of the season. President George W. Bush declared a state of emergency in Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi two days before the hurricane made a second landfall.

At 8:00 a.m. (CDT), on the morning of August 27th, the 81st Training Wing commander’s Crises Action Team (CAT) assembled and declared Hurricane Condition (HURCON) 3. The decision was made to evacuate over 10,000 personnel and begin preparations to shelter the remaining 6,000. Katrina continued to intensify and reached Category 5 status on August 28, with maximum sustained winds of 175 mph and a central pressure of 902 millibar (mbar). The CAT reassembled at 8:00 a.m. on Sunday morning, August 28th, and declared HURCON 2. Base shelters opened that afternoon at 5:00 p.m., and the 45th Airlift Squadron and 403rd Wing deployed their aircraft to safe zones. The CAT reconvened that afternoon and initiated HURCON 1—the outer bands of Hurricane Katrina were already being felt by Sunday evening.

Just after midnight on August 29, although the hurricane was still six hours away from a second landfall, the storm was so large that some areas of the Gulf Coast were already experiencing tropical storm-force winds. Overnight, the system entered an eye-wall replacement cycle and although its maximum sustained winds had slightly weakened, the storm grew even larger. Katrina made a second landfall at 6:10 a.m. on August 29th, near Buras-Triumph, Louisiana (approximately 150 miles west of Keesler AFB), as a Category 3 hurricane with sustained winds of 125 mph.

A few hours later, Katrina made a third and final landfall near the Louisiana/Mississippi border with 120 mph sustained winds— still a Category 3 hurricane. Record storm surge came ashore along the entire Mississippi Gulf Coast and into Alabama, peaking at 34 feet in Bay St Louis, Mississippi, and reaching 13 feet as far away as Mobile, Alabama. Moving at 15 mph, Katrina's eye passed 43 miles to the west of Keesler. With the base battened down and all conceivable preparations completed, personnel waited for the storm to pass. Scattered across the installation in six, 1,000-person shelters (medical center and training buildings), 6,006 people hunkered down as the base was pummeled for nearly 12 hours.

Katrina's Wake

The water from Biloxi's Back Bay swamped Keesler's northern- most thoroughfare, Ploesti Drive. The main road running north and south, Larcher Boulevard—along with 50 percent of the base— became submerged. The BX and Commissary were inundated under more than five feet of water; Keesler Medical Center received massive flooding into its basement, as did countless other facilities. The shelters were battered and took on some floodwater, but remained intact. When the storm surge receded and the winds calmed down, Katrina's devastating blow to Keesler was estimated at $950 million with 95 percent of the base damaged to some extent.

Personnel and resources from around the Air Force quickly converged on the installation, and the extraordinary reconstruction effort, dubbed Operation DRAGON COMEBACK, began in earnest. Although Keesler's training mission was temporarily halted, within days several squadrons resumed training for students who were within 7-10 days of graduating from their respective courses. The rapid recovery and repair of training facilities and the remarkable efforts of instructors allowed additional courses to be quickly brought back on line. By October 20, all enlisted initial skill courses were approved to be taught, although some at less than 100 percent capacity; by November 1st, there were 1,762 students in training at Keesler; and by years end almost all training facilities, dining halls, and student dorms that had sustained damage became operational. The tremendous efforts of the military and civilians assigned to the 81st Training Wing enabled Keesler's mission to resume much sooner than anyone originally anticipated, and the remarkable pace of rebuilding the base continued.

At the beginning of the 21st Century, the 81 TRW was one of the largest technical training wings in Air Education and Training Command (AETC). In addition to technical training, Keesler AFB also trained pilots in C-21 aircraft. The C-21's belonged to the 45th Airlift Squadron (AS), a detachment from Little Rock AFB, Arkansas. The 45th AS inactivated on 15 July 2011 ending seven years of pilot training. Today, the 81st Training Wing (81 TRW) trains thousands of Airmen and members from the Navy, Army, Marines, Coast Guard, and allied nations. Thousands of Air Force and DoD civilians train at Keesler each year. Thirty-six AFSC-awarding training courses were taught at Keesler; among them are Undergraduate Cyber Training, Command Post, Air Traffic Control, Manpower, Personnel, and DoD Weather. The 81st Medical Group also trains Airmen in seven enlisted Phase II medical courses and doctors and dentists through its graduate medical and dental education programs. Though the 81 TRW primary missions were that of technical training, Keesler AFB is host to many associate units with their own histories.

Keesler AFB Became the Air Force's Cyber Training Campus

The Air Force Announced in 2009 that the 81st Training Group (81 TRG) at KAFB would establish a cyber-campus. Therefore, combat systems, communications, and information officers combined into a cyber-warfare officer 17X specialty group. The enlisted members also transitioned the same way into cyber warfare operations (bound/wired) and (unbound/wireless) career fields. This process initiated the path to the Undergraduate Cyber Training (UCT) program. The first officers graduated from the UCT on 7 December 2010.

HISTORY OF THE 81st TRAINING WING

Emblem: Approved 2 Mar 1943, for use by the 81st Fighter Group; approved 14 May 1956 for use by the 81st Training Wing.

Description: Or, a dragon salient wings displayed addorsed azure, armed and langued gules, incensed proper, holding in its dexter claw a stylized boll weevil sable.

Significance: The wing's mission is symbolized by the fabled fiery dragon, a creature adopted in medieval times with the thought of intimidating enemies. The dragon's breath of fire renders all opposition useless, while the stylized boll weevil clutched in the dragon's claw is suggestive of the enemy.

Motto: Le Nom-Les Armes-La Loyauté (The Name, The Arms, The Loyalty)

Although not established until 1948, the 81st Tactical Fighter Wing's bestowed history dates back to World War II, when the 81st Pursuit Group (Interceptor) was activated in February 1942, at Morris Field, North Carolina. In May 1942, the unit was redesignated the 81st Fighter Group and began training with P-39 aircraft. Later that year, the group's ground echelon arrived in French Morocco with the force that invaded North Africa on 8 November 1942. Its air echelon, which had trained in England, arrived in North Africa in December 1942. Assigned to Twelfth Air Force, the Group supported Allied ground operations against Axis forces in Tunisia. Afterward, the 81st patrolled the coast of Africa and protected Allied shipping lanes in the Mediterranean Sea. The group also provided cover for ship convoys that landed troops on the island of Pantelleria and Sicily, and at Anzio, Italy

In February 1944, the 81st transferred to India and began training with P-40 Warhawk and P-47 Thunderbolt aircraft. It moved to China in May and became part of Fourteenth Air Force. The group continued training until January 1945, when it returned to combat duty. There, the 81st attacked enemy airfields and installations and aided Chinese ground forces by attacking Japanese troop concentrations, ammunition depots, communication lines, and other strategic targets. The group inactivated in China on 27 December 1945.

The 81st Fighter Group reactivated on 15 October 1946, at Wheeler Field, Hawaii, and was outfitted with P-51 Mustangs. On 1 May 1948, the 81st Fighter Wing also activated at Wheeler Field, and the 81st Fighter Group became its primary operational component. (The group inactivated in February 1955). Although the wing's Mustang fighters were replaced with P-47N Thunderbolt aircraft, the wing continued to defend Hawaiian airspace until mid-1949. In June of that year, the 81st moved to Kirtland AFB, Albuquerque, New Mexico, where it began flying F-80C Shooting Star jet fighters. On 20 January 1950, the wing was redesignated the 81st Fighter-Interceptor Wing. Outfitted with the new F-86A Sabre fighter jet, it moved to Moses Lake (later Larson) AFB, Washington, a few months later. Upon arrival, the 81st was assigned to the Western Air Defense Force and given a new mission—air defense of the Pacific Northwest.

Just 14 months later, in August 1951, 81st personnel found themselves packing bags again—this time moving to RAF Bentwaters in England. As part of Third Air Force, the 81st was the first F-86 Sabre unit to be based in Europe where it played a major role in the peacetime air defense of Great Britain. In 1954 the wing converted to the F-84F Thunderstreak, and on 1 April of that year, the unit was redesignated the 81st Fighter-Bomber Wing to reflect its nuclear strike capability. Thereafter, the 81st was charged with tactical operations for the United States Air Forces in Europe in support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), with air defense as a secondary mission. The wing upgraded to the faster, longer-ranged F-101A Voodoo in early 1958.

On 8 July 1958, two significant events occurred. First, the wing again redesignated, this time as the 81st Tactical Fighter Wing (81 TFW). Second, a nearby installation, RAF Woodbridge, transferred to the 81 TFW. Along with RAF Bentwaters, the two locations would be known as the wing's twin base of operations for 35 years.

Seventeenth Air Force became headquarters to the 81 TFW in 1961, but in September 1963, the wing once again found itself under the command of Third Air Force. In 1965, the 81st converted to the F-4C Phantom II, and then in turn to the F-4D beginning in 1969. The 81st traded in its high-speed, high-altitude F-4s for the slow-flying A-10A Thunderbolt II ground attack aircraft in 1979, and for a time the wing was the Air Force's largest operator of this nimble, tank-hunting aircraft, affectionately called Warthog by its pilots and ground crews. In the late 1980s, the wing's 527th Aggressor Squadron flew the F-16 Fighting Falcon.

Throughout the 1980s, the 81 TFW mission was to provide close air support and battlefield interdiction in support of NATO ground forces. The wing participated in rotational deployments to air bases in Germany, and it conducted joint training operations with U.S. and British ground forces. Following Operation Desert Storm, the 81st logged over 10,000 flying hours while patrolling "no-fly zones" over northern and southern Iraq enforcing UN sanctions against the rogue nation.

On 1 July 1993, the 81st Tactical Fighter Wing inactivated at RAF Bentwaters. That same day, HQ USAF redesignated the wing as the 81st Training Wing (81 TRW), activated it at Keesler and assigned it to Second Air Force. Although its name and mission have changed, the wing's illustrious heritage continues unbroken.

1 Sep	Forty-five (45) Civil Service employees resumed a five-day, 40-hour work-week.

Apr-Jun	The War Department inactivated all Army Air Forces airplane mechanics schools except for Keesler.
23 Apr	Keesler disbanded its Emergency Rescue School and redesignated the 3704th Army Air Forces Base Unit (Technical School, Basic Training Center, and Emergency Rescue School) as the 3704th Army Air Forces Base Unit (Technical School and Basic Training Center).

- 30 Jun Basic training ended at Keesler. As a result, the 3704th again changed its name, becoming the 3704th Army Air Forces Base Unit (Technical School).
- 1 Jul The Air Chemical School opened.
- 14 Dec Keesler Women's Army Corps detachment inactivated.

- 1 May Officials in Washington announced that the radar school at Boca Raton, Florida, would move to Keesler.
- Jul-Sep Keesler Federal Credit Union was chartered. The member ship fee was 25 cents.
- 18 Sep The worst hurricane to strike the Gulf Coast since 1915 made landfall south of New Orleans. (The practice of naming hurricanes did not begin until 1953.) The Biloxi area recorded winds in excess of 100 miles per hour and storm surge of 15 feet or more. Beach front buildings and seafood processing facilities sustained heavy damage. Keesler personnel conducted anti-looting patrols, rescued stranded storm victims, and made emergency repairs.
- 14 Nov The Air Force officially transferred its Boca Raton radar school to Keesler. Classes began in January 1948.

- 13 Jan Keesler Field became Keesler Air Force Base.
- 26 Aug Keesler replaced its base unit (3704th Air Force Base Unit) type organization with a wing base plan when Air Training Command designated and organized the 3380th Technical Training Wing. Also on this date, designated, organized, and assigned to the wing were the 3380th Medical Squadron (station hospital), the 3380th Air Base Group, the 3380th Technical Training Group, and the 3380th Maintenance and Supply Group.
- 28 Aug Air Training Command discontinued the 3704th Air Force Base Unit (Technical School).
- 1 Nov The 3380th Medical Squadron was redesignated as the 3380th Station Medical Squadron.

1949

- 1 Mar The Air Force announced that the Airplane and Engine Mechanics Department at Keesler would transfer to Sheppard AFB, Texas beginning in April.
- 1 Jun The Radio Operations School moved from Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, to Keesler. The first course began on 15 June. Nine of the students were Air Force women. This was the first time Keesler had operated a coeducational technical course.
- Summer The Air Chemical School transferred to Lowry AFB, Colorado.
- 9 Nov Airplane and engine mechanics training ended.

1950

- 27 Jun The 3380th Station Medical Squadron was redesignated as the 3380th Medical Group.

1951

- Jul-Sep Keesler's hospital became the first in the Air Force to establish an appointment system for its outpatient clinics.

1953

- Jan-Jun Airmen began occupying new dormitory style barracks in the area nicknamed the Triangle.
- 16 Oct The 3380th Medical Group was redesignated as the 3380th USAF Hospital.
- 1 Dec Contractors began clearing the site for a new $5.5 million base hospital.

1957

- 8 Feb Tactical Air Command's Air-Ground Operations School arrived from Southern Pines, North Carolina. Its T-33s were the first jets assigned to Keesler.

1958

- 1 Jul Scott Air Force Base began transferring its control tower operator and radio operator general courses to Keesler. The process was completed by June 1959.
- The 3380th USAF Hospital was redesignated as the USAF Hospital Keesler.

- 1 Jan Air Training Command redesignated the 3380th Technical Training Wing as the Keesler Technical Training Center and the 3380th Technical Training Group became the 3380th Technical School, USAF. All student squadrons became school squadrons.
- 20 May The SM-65 Atlas Intercontinental Ballistic Missile (ICBM) ground training courses began.

- 1 Dec Keesler built a closed-circuit television studio to teach electronics principles. The studio was placed in Building 409, a former bowling alley.

1962

- 30 Jun The base closed its recreational facilities on Ship Island.

1964

- 24 Mar Officials dedicated a new NCO Club, building 2221.

1965

- 1 Apr The last C-47 left Keesler. These aircraft had been used for ground approach radar training, but the adoption of less expensive simulators made their use unnecessary.
- 9 Sep Hurricane Betsy lashed the Gulf Coast with winds over 100 miles per hour and storm surge as high as 15 feet above normal. Downtown Biloxi suffered heavy flooding and wind damage. Keesler personnel assisted with rescue efforts, storm clean-up, and emergency repairs.

1967

- 15 Jan The command activated the 3389th Pilot Training Squadron at Keesler. This unit trained foreign pilots under the Military Assistance Program (MAP) using the T-28 aircraft. Classes began on 23 January 1967.

1968

- 11 Jun Keesler's technical school graduated its one-millionth student.
- 1 Jul With Amarillo AFB, Texas, closing, Air Training Command moved its personnel and administration courses to Keesler. The transfer increased Keesler's student load by 20 percent.

1969

- 1 Jul Keesler's student load peaked at 14,000 during the Vietnam War.
- Air Training Command (ATC) redesignated the USAF Hospital Keesler as the USAF Medical Center, Keesler. At the same time, the facility became one of six regional medical centers in the Air Force hospital system.
- 18 Aug Hurricane Camille made landfall at Waveland, Mississippi, clocking wind gusts of over 200 miles per hour and pushing water surges as high as 35 feet above normal. More than 260 people were killed, and communities in five states were devastated. Keesler officials estimated on base damage at $3.5 million. During a subsequent inspection visit, President Richard Nixon praised the base's heroic rescue and community assistance efforts.

- 15 May Groundbreaking ceremonies took place for the new Base Exchange (BX) shopping center.

1971

- 4 Jan Keesler reorganized under the multi-deputy system, and the air base group commander became the base commander.
- 1 Mar Air Training Command (ATC) activated the 3380th Student Group and assigned it 18 student squadrons.
- 1 Jul Kitchen Patrol, or KP, ended at the base when civilian contractors assumed responsibility for food preparation.
- 6 Oct Base officials held a groundbreaking ceremony for the new Commissary.

1972

- 1 Aug Air Training Command (ATC) inactivated the 3380th Technical School at Keesler and, on the same date, activated the USAF School of Applied Aerospace Sciences, Keesler. ATC assigned it to the Keesler Technical Training Center.

1973

- 25 Apr The Air Force Reserve activated the 920th Tactical Airlift Group at Keesler and equipped it with C-130s.
- 4 May The T-28 pilot training program ended after graduating 908 foreign students. The majority of them came from South Vietnam.
- 18 Jun The 53d Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, a Military Airlift Command (MAC) unit, moved from Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico, to Keesler.
- 21 Dec Keesler became the prime technical training center for the airborne warning and control system (AWACS).

1974

- 10 Jun Blake Fitness Center opened.

1975

- 18 Aug The first of seven EC-130 aircraft belonging to the 7th Airborne Command and Control Squadron arrived at Keesler.

1976

- 1 Jan A $31.6 million Composite Medical Facility was built to give the medical center a separate clinical research laboratory.
- Biloxi city officials obtained government approval for an access bridge which would connect Keesler with Interstate 110.
- Workers began constructing a $3.6 million facility to house a reception center, as well as personnel, finance, and traffic management offices. In 1978, the building was renamed the Sablich Center.
- Summer The City of Biloxi began acquiring right of way acquisition along Pass Christian Road between the base and Debuys Road so that it could be widened to four lanes. The Department of Defense would pay for 90 percent of the $3 million project.
- 30 Dec Student load fell below 5,000.

1 Apr HQ ATC inactivated the USAF School of Applied Aerospace Sciences, Keesler, and activated the 3300th Technical Training Wing and assigned it to Keesler Technical Training Center.

Air Training Command (ATC) established the USAF Technical Training School, Keesler, and assigned it to the 3300th Technical Training Wing.

1 Jan The USAF Technical Training School, Keesler, transferred from the 3300th Technical Training Wing to Keesler Technical Training Center.

Air Training Command (ATC) inactivated the 3300th Technical Training Wing.

1 Jan Construction began on a new logistics/materiel complex, which would later be dedicated as the Taylor Logistics Center.

13 Sep Hurricane Frederick struck, causing about $11 million in property damage on the base. In addition to base clean up, many Air Force personnel assisted with recovery efforts in several communities along the Gulf Coast.

1 Nov Air Training Command designated and activated the 3300th Technical Training Wing. Air Training Command reassigned the USAF Technical Training School, Keesler, from Keesler Technical Training Center to the 3300th Technical Training Wing.

4 Apr Base officials dedicated a new control tower. It replaced a tower that had been in use since 1941.

31 Dec Student load climbed to 6,891.

13 Mar Base officials dedicated the new childcare and dependent-care centers.

27 Apr The USAF Medical Center opened a new $45.3 million clinic addition.

1 Aug As a result of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization strike, the 3300th Technical Training Wing had to increase its production of air traffic controllers.

1982

- 24 Apr Keesler Air Force Base hosted the first Special Olympics for the mentally challenged. The event drew 350 participants.
- 4 May The new Medical Food Inspection Facility, which also housed the base's new veterinary clinic, began operation.
- 1 Jun Keesler lost its postal training courses when the Department of Defense consolidated all training at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

1983

- 1 Jan Surgeons at the medical center began performing cardiovascular surgery.
- 1 Nov Keesler's Air Force Reserve unit, the 920th Tactical Airlift Group, inactivated. Its personnel and equipment were absorbed by the reserve's newly-activated 403rd Rescue and Reconnaissance Wing.

1984

- 10 Aug The base dedicated a new $4.7 million civil engineering complex.

1985

- 2 Sep Hurricane Elena struck the coast, causing $5 million damage to Keesler.

1986

- 1 Oct Morse code systems radio operator training moved to Fort Devens, Massachusetts. This training had been at Keesler since 1949, when the general radio operator course moved from Scott Air Force Base.

1987

- 15 Mar Volunteers completed two super playgrounds on the base using the previous year's energy savings plus money donated by on and off base personnel.
- 2 Jun A new $7 million computer training facility opened.

1988

- 1 Mar The Family Support Center was established and located in the Sablich Center.
- 30 Sep Average daily student load was 3,026—the lowest in the history of the technical school to date.

4 Oct Through the efforts of the John C. Stennis Chapter of the Air Force Association, a Boulevard of Flags was established on Larcher Boulevard.

1 Feb Builders began working on a new operations facility for the 3380th Security Police Squadron. It would replace the converted World War II barracks that the squadron used as a headquarters.

Contractors began building a new squadron operations center that would also house three tenant organizations. They included the 7th Airborne Command and Control Squadron, the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron and the 24th Weather Squadron.

28 Aug Members of the 7th Airborne Command and Control Squadron deployed to Southwest Asia in support of Operation Desert Shield.

1991

22 Jan Over 260 Keesler medical personnel deployed to various locations in support of Operation Desert Storm.

30 Jun Military Airlift Command inactivated the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron. The 53rd's hurricane hunter mission transferred to the 403rd Airlift Wing, Keesler's Air Force Reserve unit.

12 Jul Keesler AFB celebrated its 50th anniversary.

14 Feb Air Training Command (ATC) redesignated the technical training center as Keesler Training Center, the 3300th Technical Training Wing became a group, and all technical training groups became squadrons. At the same time, Air Training Command inactivated the 3305th Student Group and its subordinate units. Also, in line with this reorganization, the command redesignated the Keesler Technical Training Center Medical Center as the Keesler Medical Center.

6 Apr The Department of the Navy assumed control of the base printing plant.

15 Sep All 3380th-designated units were redesignated as 393rd units.

1 Dec All Air Force weather courses transferred from Chanute AFB, Illinois, to Keesler. Classes were temporarily held in Allee and Wolfe Halls while new facilities were under construction.
